

Development Project:

Research other schools and their athletics websites, specifically their development/support pages. DU currently still mails out their annual donor membership guide, which accounts for 1/3 of their annual budget. Instead of mailing so many out to people that more than likely don't read them, what do other schools do? Research schools that use an interactive membership guide on their website that is more engaging for donors, and what their capital projects (facilities) are or have been, if any, and their endowments. I am also to find out what company has designed these websites as well.
